SURVIVORS TELL OF BEVERKILL CLOSED TO LOG NAVIGATION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 1.—German seamen stood by and jeered while the Leyland line steamship Armenian, which was attacked by a German submarine off the Cornish coast, went to the bottom, according to survivors who were landed at Avonmouth today by the trawler Princess. The death list may reach thirty-five, of whom about a score are Americans. Twenty-nine persons are reported missing, but ten others were wounded, six of them seriously.

The latest submarine attack, resulting in the loss of American lives, has aroused much excitement throughout England and the next move of the United States in the negotiations with Germany over the undersea warfare is being awaited with deep eagerness.

A description of the sinking of the Armenian was given by survivors at Avonmouth and a combination of various reports follows:

"When the submarine was first sighted on Monday, Captain J. Trickey hoped to outdistance the underwater boat and crowded on all possible steam. In the meantime the seamen and others on board the ship crowded to the rail and watched the chase. The submarine, which was later identified as the U. 38, is one of the biggest underwater craft in the world."

She sped along the surface water frantically signalling to the Armenian to stand by. Instead of obeying Captain Trickey began sundering to get away. Fearing he had begun to send the ship zigzag course, but this necessitated a reduction of her speed.

"At the meantime the submarine overhauled the steamer, and the Germans opened fire with a gun. They got the exact range without difficulty and shells were soon dropped around the ship. One struck the pilot house and killed several men."

"Another projectile shattered through a small boat and crashed a ship's rail."

"Captain Trickey still hoped to outdistance the submarine and crowded on all possible steam. In the meantime the seamen and others on board the ship crowded to the rail and watched the chase. The submarine, which was later identified as the U. 38, is one of the biggest underwater craft in the world."

Judge Chester has handed down a decision in the case of the Beaverkill Stream Club against Elizabeth C. Lemmi, doing business under the registered trade name of The Arthur Leighton Company, which was tried before him at the recent trial of the supreme court.

The action was for a permanent injunction restraining the defendant from floating logs down the Beaverkill stream from her property above the Beaverkill Stream Club's property to her mill a considerable distance below it. Floating logs down the stream was contended by the defendant to be a right sustained by various court decisions, but a full examination of the facts convinced Judge Chester that this case differs from the cases on which the defendant relied, and that the logs cannot be floated downstream without damage to the Beaverkill Stream Club's property.

A lengthy opinion written by Judge Chester practically reviews the history of log-floating along the Beaverkill and describes some of the interesting episodes which were told during the trial by witnesses, some of whom were the oldest inhabitants of that section of the state.

Davis, Doyle & Davis of New York City represented the Beaverkill Stream Club during the trial of the case, with Frederick E. W. Darrow, of counsel; J. Aspinwall Hodge of New York City was counsel for Mrs. Lemmi.

Judge Chester's interesting opinion in full is as follows:

This action is brought by the plaintiff, a riparian owner, to enjoin the defendant from using a portion of Beaverkill river as a public highway and from floating wood down such stream through the plaintiff's property.

The plaintiff is a domestic corporation organized for the enforcement of the forest, fish and game law, for the propagation of fish and game and the purchasing, leasing and selling of lands and waters for shooting, fishing and hunting purposes. The plaintiff has title to about four miles of the bed of the stream in question and a considerable strip of land on each side thereof. It is located in a district devoted to fish and game preserves and is surrounded by state lands by the State Conservation Commission.

The defendant owns a considerable tract of forest land on Beecher Brook, a branch of the Beaverkill, above plaintiff's property, which is timbered principally with maple, birch and beech. It is the defendant's purpose to cut this timber into sticks of about fifty-two inches in length and about nine or ten inches in diameter, which sticks it is intended to float down the stream to the plaintiff's property to be conveyed about 30 miles down the Beaverkill to Elk Brook below the plaintiff's property, where the defendant maintains and operates a factory for the manufacture of wood chemicals, employing a large number of men. The defendant insists that the plaintiff's title to the portion of the stream in question is subject to a public easement or right of floatage thereon for her and the public's benefit. So far as appears, however, no one of the public except the defendant now claims the right of floatage through the plaintiff's property.

The action is brought to restrain the defendant from carrying into effect her threat to float this timber through the plaintiff's property.

The Beaverkill river is a tributary of the east branch of the Delaware river. It rises in the mountains in the town of Hardenbergh in Ulster county and flows through that county, then across the northern section of Sullivan county, thence through Delaware county as far as the town of East Branch, where it joins the east branch of the Delaware river. It is a fresh water non-tidal stream. There is a highway along the Beaverkill to which the defendant adds the public have access from her property above the plaintiff's land to her factory at Elk Brook.

There is no substantial trouble with the law applicable to cases of this kind. The rule has been stated in the leading case of Morgan v. King, 35 N. Y. at 459, to be "that the public have a right of way in every stream which is capable, in its natural state and its ordinary volume of water, of transportation in a condition fit for market, the products of the forests or mines, or of the tillage of the soil upon its banks. It is not essential to the right, that the property to be transported should be carried in vessels, or in some other mode, whereby it can be guided by the agency of man, provided it can, ordinarily, be carried safely, without such guidance. Nor is it necessary that the stream should be capable of being thus navigated against its current, as well as in the direction of its current. It is so far navigable or floatable in its natural state and its ordinary capacity, as to be of public use in the transportation of property, the public claim to such use ought to be liberally supported. Nor is it essential to the easement that the capacity of the stream, as above defined, should be continuous, or in other words, that its ordinary state, at all seasons of the year, should be such as to make it navigable. It is ordinarily subject to periodical fluctuations in the volume and height of its water, attributable to natural causes and recurring as regular as the seasons, and if its periods of high water or navigable capacity, ordinarily, continue, a sufficient length of time to make it useful as a highway, it is subject to the public easement."

The general views thus expressed in the case above mentioned have been followed in many other cases in this and other states, which it is not necessary to refer to, but it is not altogether easy to apply these rules to the somewhat conflicting testimony in this case and to find therefrom sufficient to justify the finding of fact under the law as thus stated that that part of the Beaverkill owned by the plaintiff is a public highway and subject to the rights of floatage in the public.

Much testimony has been given as to the character of the stream at the place in question and also much as to some attempts that have been made to float logs, timber and wood thereon.

The plaintiff's proof tends to show a shallow stream, very narrow in places with many abrupt turns, having within it numerous islands and with a bed that is unusually rocky and stony and obstructed with boulders and fallen trees. It is claimed by the plaintiff that this is the usual and ordinary character of the stream. The defendant's testimony on the other hand tends to show a stream with a large volume of water which covers up the rocks and stony channel. Many of the defendant's photographs were taken at a time of flood or freshet in the stream, while many of the plaintiff's photographs were taken at comparatively low water. The defendant insists that her only desire is to use the stream at the time of the spring or fall freshets when the water is necessarily high. The plaintiff claims that the freshets are of irregular occurrence both in the spring and fall and are never of sufficient duration to afford an adequate volume of water for successful navigation. It is evident that many freshets arising in the stream, especially those arising from rains, are of very short duration while the usual spring freshets arising from melting snow and ice come with reasonable certainty each season. They differ, however, in character, magnitude and duration as the snow falls during the preceding winter have been great or small. They are hardly to be classed as of such certainty as to afford a safe reliance from season to season for floatage purposes between the long distance from defendant's forest to her mill and some seasons they do not occur at all with sufficient volume of water for such purposes.

The best evidence of whether the stream is navigable or floatable, or not, it seems to me will be found in the testimony concerning the efforts made at various times to float timber, logs and wood thereon.

It is conceded that formerly there was a large amount of rafting on the Beaverkill in the spring time. Most of it, however, commenced at a point in the river below the plaintiff's property. This was continued for perhaps seventy-five years but it was abandoned about twenty-five years ago when the supply of timber in the locality was practically exhausted. Some of this timber so rafted was drawn by hand from points on the Beaverkill near the lower line of plaintiff's property and several miles above the point where the rafting was commenced.

During a few years there was some floating of logs down the stream for a distance of two or three miles to a point above the plaintiff's property, but this was a short distance above the plaintiff's upper line.

There is some proof of occasional floating or attempts to float logs and timber through that portion of the stream now owned by the plaintiff when the timber became stranded on the shores or islands and had to be drawn out from the stream by poles from the plaintiff's property along the banks of the stream which would be a trespass that the court should not sanction.

The defendant has not, I think, fairly sustained the burden of proof resting on her to show that the stream at the place in question is "navigable or floatable in its natural state and its ordinary capacity," and for that reason the plaintiff should have judgment continuing the injunction with costs, but no extra allowance should be granted herein.

One attempt to float sawed timber over this portion of the stream was regarded simply as a sporting adventure by the men engaged in it. Two of them tried to ride on two sawed sticks lashed together until they were "stove up" as one of them testified by "running against a rock," "bust up the raft so we had to re-raft it to get out." This adventure was had as the witness stated at a time when they had too much water and the experience was such that no second attempt was made.

One attempt at navigating a flat boat on the stream a short distance below the plaintiff's property with two men in it resulted in first capsizing the boat after it had run a little distance and then in the men being thrown out again within less than a mile and of the practical destruction of the boat by being banged and pounded on the rocks and sawed in two. Even to get this distance the men had to get out and push several times but it is fair to say that this effort was in the summer time.

In 1907 and 1908 an attempt was made to float unseasoned cord wood four feet long and an average of twelve inches in diameter from Turners wood which is located on the part of the stream owned by the plaintiff to Roscoe, many miles below plaintiff's property. During a freshet thirty cords of this wood were placed in the stream near Turners wood and much of it became stranded all along the shores in the eddies and on the stones and only a small percentage, if any, of it went through. The defendant conceded that when but a few cords of wood are thrown into the stream for float-age many pieces are stranded by hitting obstructions along the bank or in midstream but insists that when a large quantity of cord wood is put in, that coming down the stream later will be more easily deflected by and find its way past that which has been put in earlier and become lodged and is more likely therefore to float through a central channel. There is some testimony to that effect but in either event, I think whether the quantity is large or small a very considerable proportion will, in this stream at the place in question, eventually remain upon the shores or islands or upon other obstructions in the stream and could not be secured except by some means of "driving" that would necessarily involve trespassing upon plaintiff's lands.

The testimony shows that this stream in later years since so many of the forests have been cut away is much lower than formerly so that the evidence relating to these efforts at floatage made some years ago must be considered in the light of the difference in the character of the stream at the present time and at the time when the experiments were made.

The testimony in the case, but a small portion which has been referred to, leads to but one conclusion in my opinion and that is that any attempt to float wood in this stream at the place in question, even at high water would be most precarious, impracticable and commercially unprofitable and would result not only in substantial loss to the person attempting to use the stream for the purpose but in damage to the plaintiff. No successful floating would be made in my opinion without the aid of "drivers" or men employed to keep the wood in the water. The character of the stream is such that it would be essential that they could not ride or navigate down the stream on the wood the defendant desires to float for it is too small for that purpose, nor could they "drive" from boats because of the liability of destruction of such craft. They could not walk the stream at high water and would necessarily be required to perform their work with poles from the plaintiff's property along the banks of the stream which would be a trespass that the court should not sanction.

ARMENIAN UNDER ADMIRALTY CHARTER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 1.—The British admiralty has informed Ambassador Page in London that the steamship Armenian, sunk by a German submarine with the loss of 21 American lives, was engaged in admiralty business and that she carried no passengers.

This information was cabled by Ambassador Page to the state department today. The ambassador suggested that the Americans who were lost with the Armenian appeared, therefore to have been members of her crew. The effect of this statement if it be confirmed by later developments will be to remove the claim of the American government which otherwise might be brought against Germany that American citizens on an unarmed merchantman had perished through the attack of a German submarine on the vessel.

The statement by the British admiralty to Ambassador Page is in apparent contradiction to the statement issued by the Leyland line officials in New York to the effect that the American was not under charter to the British government but merely was an unarmed merchantman carrying mules to Europe.

The British government by its admission that the Armenian was an admiralty business, virtually places the vessel in the legal status of a transport and the Americans in her crew are placed in the legal status of belligerents.

WAS ARMENIAN A WAR TRANSPORT?

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 1.—State department machinery was set in motion today with the return to Washington of Secretary of State Lansing to establish the status of the Leyland liner Armenian, sunk off the English coast by a German submarine with the loss of a score of American lives. On this inquiry will depend the course of the U. S. government, it was stated. Officials pointed out that if the ship, which was carrying mules for the British army, was found to have been merely a merchantman subject to visit and search before attack, even though she carried contraband, this government will have cause for action. But if it be disclosed that the Armenian was chartered by the British government and was in fact a transport of war, the Americans would have sailed at their own risk.

The incident, being the first involving American lives since the sinking of the Lusitania, created considerable stir in official circles, but no one in authority would say, pending receipt of official facts in the case, what effect it would have on the negotiations between this country and Germany.

Ambassador Page at London was asked to obtain the facts from the British government and Ambassador Gerard in Berlin was directed to make similar inquiry of the German authorities. The dispatches forwarded to the state department by Consul Armstrong at Bristol also were forwarded to President Wilson at Corning and word from him relative to the course to pursue was awaited by officials here.

It was stated at the state department that inquiry would be made as to whether the American was armed, was a part of the British naval forces and whether she had any British officers aboard. The case will hinge largely, it was stated, on whether the Armenian was given warning of an attack or whether she attempted to escape after being ordered to stop.

In its note to Germany on the case of the Falaba the British liner sunk with the loss of one American, the U. S. upheld the right of a vessel to attempt to escape on sighting an enemy warship from which it feared an attack. The position also was taken that after a ship had stopped on warning she was not subject to attack until all on board had been removed.

There was a disposition in some official quarters to believe that the Armenian attempted to escape after being warned. This view was based on Consul Armstrong's report that a second shot "carried away the wireless" station on the ship. Should this be found to have been the case, the officials stated, Germany may be able to justify the sinking of the ship.

Mules are contraband under all the lists published by the belligerents and it was conceded at the state department that no doubt can be raised as to the character of the Armenian's cargo.

It will take further official reports from Consul Armstrong and the Ambassadors at London and Berlin, therefore to determine the position of this government and final opinion will be suspended pending receipt of those reports.

Meanwhile, however, officials express the view that the Armenian incident came at an unfortunate time. It was stated that it probably will make it more difficult for the U. S. government to accept the compromise suggestions which it has been reported the Kaiser intends to make in his reply to the President's Lusitania note demanding freedom of the seas.

EXPLOSION WAS IN LUSITANIA'S CARGO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 1.—Testimony that bears out the contention of the German government that only one torpedo was fired at the Lusitania and that the second explosion resulted from the blowing up of ammunition in the liner's hold, was given today when Lord Mersey re-opened the Board of Trade investigation into the destruction of the ship by a German submarine.

Prof. Joseph Marichal of Queens University, Ontario, the chief witness, who was a passenger on the ship, declared that the second explosion sounded like the rattling of Maxim guns. Lord Mersey asked if Prof. Marichal got the impression that Maxim guns were being discharged in the ship's hold.

No, I would suggest that it was the explosion of ammunition," replied the witness.

Prof. Marichal said he had had much experience with explosives having served as an officer for five years in the Eighth Infantry of France.

The witness expressed indignation at the way the Cunard line treated the Lusitania passengers, saying: "I wish to go on record now as expressing my disgust."

Prof. Marichal declared that he heard the seamen on the Lusitania being ordered to look after the mails as the vessel was going down and denied the suggestion that he had mistaken the word of the females for mails.

FOURTH OF JULY SUNDAY SERVICE

Kingston will observe the Fourth of July with a patriotic service Sunday afternoon in the auditorium of the new high school under the auspices of Washington Camp, No. 2, Patriotic Order Sons of America. The service will begin at three o'clock and the speakers will be the Rev. Andrew Schryver of Chester, Orange county, who spoke at the Memorial Day exercises in this city a month ago, and former City Treasurer Floyd W. Powell, who is now connected with the state treasurer's office at Albany. Dr. Schryver will deliver his famous lecture on Abraham Lincoln. A special program of patriotic music will be rendered during the service. Washington Camp has issued a special invitation to the Civil War and Spanish War veterans, Sons of Veterans, Daughters of Veterans, Daughters of America, Patriotic Order of America, Daughters of the American Revolution and all other patriotic organizations to be present, and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend the service.

WAR ON ILLIUM'S PLAINS.

Where Homer's Heroes Fought Allies
Are Now Fighting Turks.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., July 1.—Canon awakening the echoes over Illium's plains, where the allies are trying to pound their way beyond the Dardanelles, stir many legendary memories of this historic battle-region and bring to mind the oddest contrasts. Here, where now modern ordnance is hurling its messengers of destruction, Homer's heroes waged their spectacular single-handed combats, while admiring armies grouped themselves around to watch. It is a far cry from the romantic siege of Troy to the terribly impersonal battle of today. Yet the old walls of Troy must bring some sort of inspiration to the soldiers fighting in their shadows, soldiers of the allies or of the Turk. Excavations on Illium beside the present war's great battlefield is described in a communication to the National Geographic Society by Jacob E. Conner. He says: "The Trojan walls are still in evidence; those same walls that defied the onslaughts of Agamemnon and Menelaus, of Ajax, Nestor, Diomed, Ulysses and Achilles, to fall at last by stratagem. They remain as a ruined and abandoned stage set of its paraphernalia, whereon was played so many centuries ago in insignificant little drama compared with modern events; but it was a drama so big with human interest divinely told that the world has never known its equal."

"Wars in these crowded times are for gain—shameless gain—but in the youth of the world, if we take the Iliad literally, men could afford to fight for an ideal. Hence the Homeric warfare was a beautiful, a poetic pastime, seriously resulting to some happy few, who were thenceforth rewarded with immortality in song."

"As the theatre of the world's greatest epic poem, Troy deserves a visit any year, every year. In the thoughts and emotions it revives and stimulates in the aroused sense of indebtedness of all subsequent literature and art, it richly repays a visit. The classical student will leave it in a daze of meditation upon things more real to him than the actual things he has seen and touched."

On the site where the German savant, Schliemann, unearthed Homer's Troy, nine layers of old-time cities were found, one above the other. They were built, destroyed, and forgotten here during the more than 5,000 years that civilization has lived upon the products of the fertile valley. The topmost layer contained the remains of the Roman city of Illium; two Hellenic villages were found directly beneath it, which flourished here between 1000 B. C. and the Christian era. The sixth city from the bottom was determined Homer's Troy. The bottom layers contained the remains of prehistoric settlements, unimportant villages that have escaped every memory except these few, uncovered, decaying stones. In the Second or Burnt City, probably 800 years before the time of Troy, was found a considerable mass of buried treasure, silver jars, gold daggers and wonderfully wrought diadems of gold. Describing the country around Troy, Mr. Conner continues:

"Yonder the summit of Mt. Ida, where the gods in solemn conclave so often sat, where 'cloud-compelling Zeus' sometimes 'thought two ways in his mind at a nod,' or else ended all debate with a nod, that shook high Olympus and caused the heavens to reverberate and glow with the flash of his thunderbolt."

"Away over yonder, skirting the ridge of Illium, is Simois' stream, or should be; but the bridge across it shows upon our approach that modern Simois is no more than a creek. Worse than that, following its attenuated course, less than a mile down stream, we discover a stream in a morass instead of joining the Scamander as of yore. And the latter stream is scarcely less disappointing, for it is no more dignified in size or appearance. In fact, their sluggish currents united can scarcely boast of banks except at occasional intervals, for both streams are now only broad swales merging with the adjacent plain, with no continuous current toward the sea except in seasons of high water, if such are ever known."

"And such beautiful plains! They were well worth fighting for, gently undulating as they retreat from the former river courses, and most home-like, cultivable places for peaceful abode. Little rounded oak trees are studied about the plain in solitary, independent fashion—oak trees resembling apple trees in size and periphery."

"Behold the ruins at last! A long, low ridge, some four or five miles in length, ends abruptly like a promontory projecting into the sea, above which it rises about 30 feet. The ridge is the so-called 'Hill of Illium,' the sea is the flood plain of the Simois and the Scamander, historically known as the plain of Troy, and the promontory, with its crown of ruins, is Troy itself. You walk around the ruins and make the surprising discovery that if the walking were good you could easily do it in ten minutes. Astonishing! Is this all there was of Troy, and did this little stronghold withstand a nine years' siege and still remain unconquered by force? Impossible! The whole hill of Illium may have been fortified and to some extent populated; otherwise how was the garrison provisioned? Unpoetic details like these never troubled Homer, so why bother about them?"

Within sight, almost, of Tenedos, the island base of the attacking allied armies, and within sound and reach of the big guns, the old ruins are watching over the present fighting, a greeting from the days of the first great western siege to the greatest siege of modern times.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1360.—A Smart Effective and Popular Style For the Growing Girl.—Girls' Dress With Separate Skirt Attached to an Under Waist.

This practical model follows the lines of "grown up" style in several points. The blouse or "jacket" as it may be called, is new and smart, and may be finished with a sleeve in wrist length, having a band cuff, or in short length, with shaped turn back cuffs. The collar is shaped to conform to these cuffs. For linen, challie, gingham, cashmere, serge, poplin, repp or chambray this style is excellent. The skirt is a three piece model. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for an 8 year size.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps, by the Freeman Pattern Department. Be sure to state size wanted.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

Will of Bernard McBride of this was partly proved before Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court this morning and the matter of its probate was held open for further testimony. The testator gave his property to his wife, Mrs. Ma A. McBride, and appoints his son, Charles L. McBride, executor. This city and James F. McBride, Rutherford, N. J., executors. He will be executed March 25, 1916, and witnessed by Devall Howell and the late Charles Irwin. The value of the estate is $3,000 real estate and $500 personal property. Brinler & Canfield appeared for the executors.

Will of Frank Burhans of this city was admitted to probate. The testator gives his estate to his wife, Mrs. Margaret Celia Burhans, whom he appoints executrix. The will was executed February 26, 1910, and witnessed by Mayor Canfield and Corporation Counsel William D. Brinler. The value of the estate is $7,500 real estate and $2,000 personal property. Brinler & Canfield appeared for the executrix.

Will of Joseph DeGraff of this city was admitted to probate. The testator bequeaths the sum of $100 to the Dutch Rural Cemetery Association in trust for the perpetual care of his burial lot; to his daughter, Lonia Newkirk and Elizabeth C. Graff, he bequeaths the sum of $10 each, and the balance of the estate he gives to his wife, Kate E. DeGraff, whom he appoints executrix. The will was executed January 8, 1914, and witnessed by George Van Eten and Charles Tappen. The value of the estate is $4,000 real estate and $5,000 personal property. George Van Eten appeared for the executrix.

Batteries of All Medical Men Aimed at Fly

"SWAT the fly!"

This, in more elegant or scientific terms, is the latest slogan of the medical profession.

The edict has gone forth, and one of the most widespread crusades that have ever been preached has been against the fly and similar insects carrying pests. Plans for conducting the same have been extensively discussed at medical meetings in this and other civilized countries frequently, and the work of "educating the public" is well under way, as numerous magazine articles testify.

In an editorial note accompanying Dr. Henry Smith Williams' article "The Messengers of Death" in a recent periodical a hint of the attitude of science toward insect pests was given as follows:

"Science has issued an edict which, of the good of humanity, should be as unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians. It is 'Kill every creeping, flying thing that asks you for food, and don't overlook the rat, the insect and the rodent that have been found to be in league with death.' In fact, the only means whereby some of the world's most virulent diseases are carried from victim to new victim."

"Persistent, never let up warfare against them is the only way to rid a man of the dangerous enemies, which need only to be let alone to crowd him off the earth; * * * the messengers of death upon which an exterminating war should be waged, against which should be directed all the batteries of science. They won't let you alone. Get after them! And don't let mercy temper your warfare. Kill!"

"The 'batteries of science' are directed at the fly. No doubt about that. A peep into the medical journals is most convincing. Attending a medical meeting dispels all doubt regarding the seriousness of the purpose behind the movement."

A Caustic Lawyer.

At Bodin's assizes once a barrister while pleading was interrupted by the judge:

"Mr. Carter, you are wasting the time of the court."

"Time of the court!" retorted the truculent veteran, glaring fiercely at the bench. "Your lordship means—your lordship's dinner!"

The judge threw up his hands in despair, and Carter continued his harangue in peace.

The same redoubtable advocate was on another occasion defending a man charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

"False pretenses!" said he, with fine scorn. "Why, we all make them every day, barristers and solicitors and judges—the whole lot of us! Talk about the purity of the judicial ermine!" Here he pointed derisively to the learned judge, who sat cowering on the bench. "Why, it's only rabbit skin!"

Shouts of laughter greeted this irreverent statement, which investigation would probably show to be literally true.—London Tit-Bits.

More to the Purpose.

"I see there is a discussion as to the best place for a woman to keep her money without losing it."
"What women need to be taught is how to keep their money without spending it."—Chicago News.

Tired of Him.

He—I always pay as I go.
She (yawning)—I don't think you'll ever become bankrupt.—Judge.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, July 1.—In the early trading the stock market showed a heavy tone because of pressure from room traders who were influenced by the Armenian incident. Under this selling a number of issues showed losses of a point or more but it was quickly demonstrated that actual holdings were not disturbed. Commission houses instead were buyers on the recessions and before the end of the first 15 minutes advances were in order throughout the list. Canadian Pacific reflected speculative operations more clearly than any other stock. Selling by traders forced it down to 142½ against 143½ at the close yesterday. The decline was followed by a quick rally to 143½. American Smelting fell 1½ to 78½, followed by an upturn to 79½. U. S. Rubber acted apart from the movement in the general list. This stock was in urgent demand in the loan crowd late yesterday indicating an extended short interest. Evidence of support this morning was followed by aggressive buying and the price rose from 51 to 53½. Copper responded to its increased dividends with an upturn of 1½ to 27½. U. S. Steel Common and Amalgamated Copper receded fractionally and the trading in those issues was without importance. Reading and Union Pacific were slightly lower. American Can after declining 1½ to 14½ moved up to 14½. Noon—Price movements were extremely narrow in the late forenoon and the leading issues showed only trifling net changes. Trading was of a listless character. Canadian Pacific advanced ¼ to 144. Reading ¼ to 127½. U. S. Steel advanced ½ to 60½ and Miami Copper continued its upward movement, that stock advancing from 27½ to 28½, a gain of 1 point for the morning. Amalgamated Copper, Utah Copper and Crucible Steel sold around their opening prices. Money loaning at 1½.

2:30 p. m.—American Can was prominent in the afternoon and in the first half of the last hour it sold around 46½ against 44½ at the opening. Pressure was directed against U. S. Rubber which fell 2 points to 51. The tone was steady but dealings were not on a large scale.

The stock market closed irregular; governments unchanged, other bonds steady.

HOW TRENCH WARFARE IS CONDUCTED AND WHY THE BRITISH HAVE FAILED TO ADVANCE.

Top: First operation in attacking a trench. Bottom: Second and final operation in attacking a trench.
Colonel Repington, of the British army, discloses the fact that the British army of 700,000 men has been unable to advance because the war department has not supplied them with the proper kind of high explosive shells, giving them instead, shrapnel, which is practically useless in trench warfare.
In an attack upon an entrenched enemy there are two separate and distinct operations. The first consists of a tornado of artillery fire from heavy guns, using high explosive shells. These shells leave a crater from fifteen to forty feet wide and ten to twenty feet deep. They destroy barbed wire entanglements or dirt embankments or even fixed fortifications. This devastating volcano of high explosives is immediately followed by an infantry attack.
Then comes the second operation. As the attacking infantry charges, the heavy artillery behind it changes from the high explosive to shrapnel. The shrapnel shell is a metal cylinder containing bullets, which scatter in all directions when it explodes. They are intended solely to kill men, not to tear up earth works.
Col. Repington says that the British have not been supplied with the high explosives, as have the French, who have made a better showing in attacking German positions.

TRIBUTE TO FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Christian Scientists are greatly interested in the construction, now under way, of a monument for the grave in Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge, Mass., of Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church. It will cost $110,000.
The entire fund was raised by voluntary subscription among members of the church throughout the country. The memorial was designated by Egerton Swartwout, and a general contract for its construction let to Elbert S. Barlow, both of New York.
The site is one of great natural beauty, being approximately eighty feet square and sloping gradually from the level of a roadway to a lake, with a drop of about ten feet.
The memorial consists of a circular, open colonnade of eight columns, resting upon a stylobate of three steps, surrounded on the front by a circular platform slightly above the natural grade. The scheme has no prototype, being merely a series of columns open to the sky, enclosing a flower-garden.
The material for the memorial is white granite, the inscriptions in the frieze and upon the top of the pylons, of white bronze, cut deep in the stone work. The detail is entirely floral in form, the wild rose and the morning glory being used as the main motives.
The extreme width of the memorial is about fifty feet, the colonnade being sixteen feet in diameter. The columns themselves are fifteen feet in height and are similar in general character to those in the Clepsidra of Andronicos of Cyrrhus.

Charms for Good Looks.

On St. George's day, Serbian ladies evoke the aid of charms as a means of improving their looks. The girl who wishes a white face places a bouquet of flowers under a white rose tree and allows it to remain there for a night; whereas those who prefer rosy cheeks place bloom under a red rose tree, and in the morning the flowers thus "charmed" are thrown into their baths.

Unwilling to Impose on the Lord.

"What does you think, sah, 'bout de 'vangelist's notion o' holdin' sunrise pra'r meetin's?" "I calls it plumb fish, sah!" replied square-headed Brother Clank. "Uhkaze who de Lawd ain't gwine to tumble over a bed dat early in de mawnin' to listen to a bunch o' niggers dat's goin' day to do deir prayin' in!"—Kansas City Star.

Couldn't Solve the Problem.

After retiring from business a certain man continued to maintain an office in a downtown building. He had no need of it and furthermore was out of town almost all the time. A friend of his pointed out the inconsistency, and asked him why he didn't give up the office. "I would," said the other, "but I don't know what to do with the rug."

A. MITCHELL PALMER

May Succeed Lansing.

Washington, July 1.—According to the belief in official circles, the choice of a counselor of the state department to succeed Robert Lansing lies between John W. Davis, of West Virginia, now solicitor general of the United States, and A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, who was appointed a judge of the court of claims, but has not taken the oath of office. It is the impression here that if Mr. Davis is made counselor Mr. Palmer will have a chance to become solicitor general.
Mr. Davis and Mr. Palmer are comparatively young. Both are lawyers, and have had considerable experience in the house of representatives.
It was said today by friends of Mr. Palmer that he was in thorough sympathy with the foreign policy of the administration developed as a result of the war.

CITY CENSUS WILL SHOW INCREASE

The census taking for the First Assembly District of Ulster county has practically been completed. There remains only the Twelfth ward of this city to be heard from and that will be in the course of a day or so. The reason for the delay in this ward is that the census taker has been forced to call at a number of places several times in order to find the people in.

With the Twelfth ward estimated at between 2,450 and 2,500, the city will total 26,566 to 26,616. This is an increase over the last census in 1910, when the official count was 25,908. However, the count without the Twelfth ward is now 24,116.

The First assembly district comprises the city of Kingston, the towns of Saugerties, Woodstock, Ulster, Kingston, Hurley and Shandaken. The official count this year to date is as follows:

City of Kingston.
First Ward	1,743
Second Ward	2,860
Third Ward	2,835
Fourth Ward	2,505
Fifth Ward	2,926
Sixth Ward	2,487
Seventh Ward	2,071
Eighth Ward	1,406
Ninth Ward	1,500
Tenth Ward	2,219
Eleventh Ward	1,657

WEST SAUGERTIES.

West Saugerties, July 1.—Mrs. Goodwell and two children, from Jacksonville, Florida, are occupants of Mr. Brown's bungalow just vacated by Roger Moran.

Mrs. Darragh of Homestead is employed by Mrs. Brown. Hector DeJorio and family of New York are occupying their summer home here.

Mr. Disbrow, wife and daughter, Aurline, are spending the summer on their farm.

Minot Disbrow and wife of Connecticut are guests of his parents.

Dorothy Brown formed one of a party of campers at Rhinecliff the past week, chaperoned by Mrs. Pullman of Kingston. She returned home on Saturday.

Mrs. Daly and family are at their farm for the summer.

Mr. Bogart, who was a guest at the home of Roger Moran, has returned to his home in Long Island.

Mrs. Moran's mother and brother are her guests just now.

Mrs. Sarah Bach and son, Harry, are in Tannersville just at present.

The predicted wedding bells have rung for Maud Schoonmaker of this place and Claude Post of Quarryville last Saturday.

David Delamater from New Baltimore was home for Sunday.

The newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rogers, returned from their bridal trip on Saturday, and believe us they got a rousing skimmington.

Willard Becker and Mrs. Bach of Saugerties took a trip up with John Cole Friday night and returned the same evening.

David MacNaughton and Millard Becker were in this place Sunday and took J. Cole's Ford car, which Becker bought.

On Monday night Mrs. Hannah Carn gave a reception in honor of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rogers. The presents were many and varied. The happy couple returned to Catskill, where they will reside until fall.

Huckleberries are ripening fast, but as usual the pickers are many.

Dr. Holcomb of Palenville was called on Tuesday to see Jesse Doyle who was taken suddenly ill.

John Schalk who works at the Knatterskill was home for a couple of days.

The Gaffneys of Brooklyn who have been visiting at John Carn's have returned to their home.

Newer is Not Better.

"Can't you use a less hackneyed expression than 'He liked for the tall and uncultured timber?'" asked the editor. "Well," said the young reporter, "I might say 'He beat it to the forest reserves, where the weeping willows have never had their eyeglasses trimmed.'"

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, July 1.—The suffrage meeting held at the Wayside Inn Tuesday afternoon had an attendance of thirty ladies, who were delighted to listen to an able address delivered by Mrs. Harriet Otis Dellenbaugh of New York, now at her summer home at Cragmoor. The meeting aroused much interest among the ladies in attendance and it was decided to arrange for another meeting to be held in the near future, and by a vote Mrs. Ewing was elected chairman, Mrs. George J. Hoornbeek secretary, and Mrs. G. F. Andrews treasurer.

At the prayer service at the M. E. Church Wednesday evening those attending had a very pleasant treat spiritually. The Rev. W. H. Moser, pastor, the Rev. E. E. Count, D. D., who is spending some time in Ellenville the district superintendent, the Rev. F. H. Deming, D. D., and the Rev. J. H. Lincoln of Livingston Manor were present and each took a part in the meeting, and the singing with Miss Florence Kelp at the piano was an inspiration to everyone present. At the close of the service the first quarterly conference was held.

William Deyo of Napanoch has gone to Saranac Lake in the Adirondacks for the summer. Mrs. F. H. Cotter and daughters, the Misses Frances, Katherine and Gertrude, Cotter of Woodmere, L. I., are guests at the Wayside Inn for the summer.

Miss Edith Gaskell of the schools at Irvington, N. J., is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gaskell for the summer vacation.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather Wednesday evening the Clayton Band concert at the lawn party given by the ladies of the Parish Aid of St. John's Episcopal Church for the band on the church lawn was enjoyed by the large crowd in attendance, and the receipts will net a nice sum of money for the treasury of the band. Their public band concert will be given next week, the place and time to be announced later.

MOMBACUS HEIGHTS.

Mombacus Heights, July 1.—The Rev. A. Quick and wife drove to Phoenixia Sunday and remained until Monday with his former congregation.

Mrs. Harry Smith and little daughter spent the week end with her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Thomas and family.

Mrs. George Mullen of New York city is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Henry Osterhout. Congratulations are in order for our rural carrier, John Geary, who was married Saturday.

Miss Raemond Coddington of Pataukunk spent Sunday with Miss Olive Smith.

Solomon Uthraff is building a large hen house.

Mrs. F. P. Smith and daughter Olive, Mrs. George Thomas and daughter Beatrice, Mrs. Harry Smith and little daughter Margaret and Miss Raemond Coddington spent Sunday afternoon at Leonard Van Etten's.

The morning and evening meetings at the Morehouse home were greatly enjoyed by a large gathering on Sunday. Preachers Hamilton and Burdick were present and gave fine sermons, as usual.

Peter Coddington, who has spent the winter with his son in Patterson, arrived at the home of his brother Elijah in this place, where he will spend the summer. He was accompanied by his son, who returned home the following day. The trip was made in Mr. Coddington, Jr.'s automobile.

James Lennon injured his hand badly one day last week helping his son remove a large stump from the field. Mr. Lennon is our grand old man, being nearly 80 years old and possessing all his faculties as keen as ever he keeps up a lively interest in all the current affairs and works on an average, every day, possessing all the qualities in a religious and social way that go to make life worth living. He is greatly beloved and esteemed by his grandchildren and all his friends and neighbors.

Master Ralph Smith, after spending part of his vacation with relatives here, will leave to visit other friends in New York and Connecticut before returning to his home in Florida.

Peter Coddington attended the meeting Sunday and spent the remainder of the day and night with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Van Etten.

The farmers are greatly concerned over the light hay crop.

Mrs. Albert Coddington and children of Pataukunk, after attending the morning meeting spent the remainder of the day with her mother, Mrs. E. Coddington.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith and family and Mrs. Amy Van Demark spent a Sunday recently with F. P. Smith and family.

The first rattler of the season was killed by Harry Smith near the Lavine home, on Tuesday.

KRIPIEBUSH.

Krippebush, July 1.—Among those who visited Kingston Tuesday from this place, were Mrs. Granville Van Demark, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Byron Van Demark, Mrs. Cornelia Barley, Mrs. Cyrus Van Demark, Mrs. Leroy Osterhout, Mrs. Vina Westbrook and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Elmer Van Demark and Roy Carney. Krippebush was well represented at Kingston.

Last Sunday's services were well attended, morning, afternoon and evening, despite the rain which made it rather disagreeable.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse J. Christiana enjoyed an auto trip to Port Jervis Sunday. They were accompanied by Mrs. Christiana's brother, David O. Van Wagenen of Lomontville, and his lady friend, Miss Maud Christiana of Lyonsville.

Mr. Voight, our Methodist minister is seen nearly every day, making duty calls in this place. He is a faithful minister and should be more appreciated in the place.

The platform dances are proving very successful at Ernest Christiana's pavilion. These are held every Wednesday night. Come and have a good time.

ASHOKAN BOULEVARD OPEN TO TRAVEL

The South Boulevard around the Ashokan reservoir has been completed by the Continental Public Works Company and was thrown open to traffic at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A party of engineers from New York city who visited the Ashokan region and went over the road pronounced it the finest they had ever seen. There are other shorter pieces of road that are as good, but the engineers said they had never seen so long a continuous stretch of such good road.

The top of the West Hurley dyke, which is a separate contract, has not yet been surfaced, but the work is in progress and will soon be completed. This requires no detour. However, over a dirt road, as the old macadam road to West Hurley comes into the boulevard west of the dyke and the new macadam approach that forks to the right beyond Stony Hollow comes into the boulevard at the east of the dyke. There is now no detour to be made in driving from this city entirely around the reservoir.

The cross road that is to be built on top of the dividing weir, near Ashokan station, may not be begun for some time, as the top of the dyke is still occupied by railroad tracks that cannot be removed until the work of filling in the earth embankments along the concrete core walls of the various dykes has been completed, as the earth for these embankments is hauled over these railroad tracks. This road is a separate contract.

OLIVE BRIDGE.

Olive Bridge, July 1.—Mrs. John Colwell and children, Beatrice and John, of New Paltz, are visiting relatives here.

Branch, July 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Dutcher and son Hanford from Albany are visiting relatives in the Branch.

Carrol Joslin returned home Sunday after spending some time in New Kingston and Allaben.

Frank Murray from Grand Gorge is visiting friends and relatives and also enjoying the fishing.

William Van Valkenburg and E. B. Hughson motored to Grahamville Sunday to see the doctor.

Gilbert Van Valkenburg is employed at Claryville for a few days.

Mr. Balkan of Biscuit Brook Bridge returned to his home in Rochester Monday, some what improved in health. He expects to return about the 15th to spend some time here.

Swatters Will Make Flyless Homes

WHILE the fly is being starved outdoors efforts should be made, through effective screening, to prevent it from gaining entrance to homes. Every household should be equipped with swatters, and if these devices are employed vigorously there will be flyless homes.

GERMANS EVACUATE SOUTH AFRICA STRONGHOLD

GERMANS EVACUATE IMPORTANT TOWN IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Slowly and steadily, with the persistency that has made the British army famous, the English colonials, in Africa have been driving the Germans from their fertile lands. This picture shows the German colonial troops evacuating the important town of Keetmanshoop, the day before the arrival of the British forces.

ARRAS, CENTER OF FIGHTING.

Some Facts About Place that Figures in War News.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., July 1.—Over the hundreds of miles of body-strewn battlefields in Europe, no more deadly spot could be found during recent fighting than just to the north of Arras, where for more than a month and a half the French have been fighting a desperate, determined assault against almost impregnable field works. More lives have been lost to the square yard of fighting area here, according to dispatches, than upon any other part of the endless battle line. Arras, the point from which the French have been recently forcing the fighting, is described in a statement just issued by the National Geographic Society.

"Arras, the capital of the French department of Pas-de-Calais, is one of the oldest and most important towns of Northern France, and is situated on the right and southern bank of the River Scarpe, at its junction with the Crinchon, partly on heights and partly in a fertile plain. A low line of heights extend to the north of the town, where the present German line runs almost due north to Ypres, in Belgium. Arras is one of the principal stations on the French Northern Railway, being about 137 miles from Paris, and 97 miles by rail. Brussels lies 97 miles to the northeast of this advance German outpost, while the important city of Amiens is 38 miles to the south-southeast.

"One of the leading grain markets of France was held in this busy city before the war. It lies well in the center of rich agricultural, grazing and industrial district, and has always been important for its trade and manufactures. Chief among the factory products of Arras were beet sugar, agricultural implements, hosiery, lace, pottery and leather. As early as the fourth century this little town was famous for its woolen manufactures, a fame that it has lost to the great woolen centers of Britannia across the water. It later became famous wherever luxury held footing for the manufacture of tapestries. Some of the most beautiful worked hangings were produced here up to the 15th century, and so superior were the tapestries of the city that they were commonly known as arras. The commerce of the city is important in grain, flour, oil, wine and brandy products.

"The lower town was compactly built, its generous-appearing homes being constructed of hewn stone. Most of the streets were laid out broad and straight and Arras made an impression of prosperity and progressiveness upon the visitor. There were a number of fine squares, bordered by beautiful public buildings. It had a population of 25,000 at the outbreak of the war, a population to which bitter necessity was unknown.

"Many an important action in Northern France has been fought in and around Arras, a site where the Latin, Celtic and German elements have struggled since the foundation of Roman empire. The city belonged to the Spanish branch of the House of Hapsburg until 1640, when Louis XIII of France captured it after a long, severe siege. It was ceded to France by the Treaty of the Pyrenees. The French Revolution and the invasion of the Germans in 1870-1871 caused much suffering among its people. Arras was the birthplace of Maximilian Robespierre, the inspired leader of the "Terror" in Paris, and also of Joseph Lebon, originally of the ministry, who led the celebrations of the horrible rise of the revolution in his native city."

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, June 30.—Walter E. Weyl will give a lecture in Firemen's Hall Friday evening, July 2, on "Peace and War." The admission is free.

Deloss Palmer, Jr., is holding an exhibition of his paintings in the art studio of the league between the dates of June 28 and July 2. Mr. Cochran holds his exhibition in the league studio next week.

Special exhibitions of pottery will be given at Byrdcliffe on Saturday of each week during the summer.

There will be a celebration of Independence Day on July 5 on the grounds of the M. E. Church. Refreshments will also be served. The ladies of the church will hold a fair at the same time when fancy articles will be on sale. The music for the occasion will be furnished by Muller's Band of Kingston. Woodstock is fortunate in securing so good a band as no better music can be secured.

While Albert Cashdollar and Fred Elwyn were riding up through the village in an automobile last Saturday afternoon, something went wrong with the steering gear. The machine turned to the left, run out of the road, struck a telephone pole, a glancing blow and then capsized in the yard of L. L. Brown. Both men were thrown out, the seat torn from the machine, the windshield smashed, the driving shaft broken, a wheel broken and other damages sustained. Fortunately the occupants were not injured.

Jesse C. Swart and Edna May Wolven, both of Saugerties, were married at the M. E. parsonage on June 14.

Leroy Harder and Hazel May Every, both of Woodstock, were married at the M. E. parsonage on June 22.

The Herlick House has fourteen boarders with a good outlook for the summer.

The Mead House has about twenty-five boarders, which is a good beginning.

Children's Day exercises at the M. E. Church Sunday evening were well rendered and a large audience was present to witness the same.

The M. E. parsonage is looking fine in the new dress of paint recently given. The artist was Charles Kline of this village.

Rev. Mr. Fredericks, a former pastor for the Lutheran Church of this place, is in town calling on friends.

EXTRA TRAIN SUSPENDED.

But Only on Condition That Regular Service is Good.

The Public Service Commission has permitted the West Shore to discontinue until the first of next January the maintenance of an extra train to take the place of the West Shore Continental Limited between Ravena and Weehawken when the Limited is more than thirty minutes late from the west. This permission is conditioned, however, on the operation of the Limited with reasonable regularity and the substitution of another train on any occasion when it may be unduly late. To secure this the road is required to report before the fifth of each month the performance of the train for the month previous. The only opposition to the suspension of the commission's former order requiring the maintenance of the extra train came from persons who feared that the train might be late in times of heavy snow. This objection is met by only suspending the order until the first of January and conditioning that suspension on the "good behavior" of the train.

$1,635,000 Hidden

In This Year's Goodyear Tires

Here are amazing facts:

Goodyear Fortified Tires contain five costly features found in no other tire. They have other features not common.

If we omitted those features, this year's probable output would cost us $1,635,000 less. We could add that much to our profits. And you would never know it until troubles came.

This year's improvements alone will cost us $500,000 yearly. Most of this goes into extra rubber—all into extra rubber—into extra rubber.

We shall spend on research $100,000 this year to find other betterments still.

Users Save

Yet our 1915 price reduction—made February 1st—will save Goodyear users about $5,000,000 this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

These extra features—used by us alone—will save users millions more.

That's why Goodyears dominate. They have long outsold any other. They are gaining new users faster than we can supply them.

hope, for your own sake, that they'll soon win you. Any dealer will supply you. (249)

ASHOKAN Dewar's Wager

How He Made a Wish Come True.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

A party of American sightseers was dawdling about in Cairo. There were a Mrs. Carleton, her son, Richard, and Miss Maud Raymond. They had ascended the Nile and seen the wonders thereof, and now they were looking for trinkets to take home with them to America. They had drifted into a bazaar where anything could be bought from an amulet to an idol.

Gish Dewar sold trinkets in the bazaar. All day long he sat in the shadow of his striped canopy, looking sad and mysterious. His dark eyes never questioned the passing crowds, nor did he importune the tourists to buy as did his fellow merchants, who talked about him.

"Who is this Gish Dewar?" asked All Benamid, the shoe dealer. "A stranger who has pushed himself forward, a lazy one who does not haggle. He sets a price upon his wares, and one may buy or not! Every day he loses customers."

"The rich Americans pause to buy. See! Gish Dewar is almost asleep!" It was true that Gish Dewar's turbaned head was drooping somnolently, even while three Americans paused before his stall.

"The old beggar's asleep, Maud," laughed the man carelessly. "Let us go on."

"But, Dick," protested the pretty girl. "I do want one of these curious flange bracelets and one of these long chains of blue-green Egyptian scarab. Aren't they lovely, Mrs. Carleton?" turning to the white haired woman who accompanied them.

"Yes, my dear, but this little brooch like a coiled snake appeals to me. Oh, Dick," to her son who was obviously bored, "do awake the man!"

Dick Carleton stifled a yawn and prodded Gish Dewar in the ribs with his walking stick.

The turbaned head flew up and a pair of liquid dark eyes blazed at him in hot anger.

But Gish Dewar's voice was silky smooth. "Excuse, effendi," he murmured. "You would buy?"

"Yes, this bracelet, now?" Maud Raymond held the flange trinket in her fingers.

The eyes of Gish Dewar gazed not at the bracelet. He was staring at the girl's little hands, white and ringless.

"How much?" insisted the girl with a note of impatience in her voice.

"A hundred piastres," muttered the seller of curios.

Miss Raymond took out her purse and paid for the bracelet, and, having priced the scarab chain and finding it too costly, they were about to move on when Gish Dewar brought out a small copper box and opened it.

"Here, effendi," he said, "are amulets to wear."

Dick Carleton looked them over. One of onyx, set with a large pearl, attracted him.

"I like this one," he said. "It will make a unique watch fob."

Gish Dewar became urgent. "It protects the wearer against dangers by sea and it protects one from false friends."

There was a sneer in his tone that set the blood to Dick's pale face.

"You talk too much, my man," he said coldly.

"Perhaps my lord is sensitive. I am a poor man. I mean no harm! The charm guards one against danger and from false friends! See, my lord, I must speak truthfully!"

Gish Dewar's brown hands went out in a flashing gesture that startled Maud Raymond, so familiar was it.

She peered down at the face of the curio dealer, but it was in deep shadow. There was a glimpse of dark eyes, an aquiline nose, a pointed beard. She felt a vague disappointment as she turned away.

There was something in gesture and voice which had reminded her of Elmer Winn, but Winn was in China, had been for five years, and she uttered a sad little laugh at her own folly. How could a sun dried Egyptian be Elmer Winn?

Dick was snapping angrily at the curio dealer.

"Keep your rubbish!" he said insolently, flinging the amulet on the carpet before Gish Dewar. "I dare say it was made in New York, any way!"

"Dick, do be careful!" cautioned his mother. "You never know what these foreigners will do!"

Maud stood aloof regarding Dick with contemptuous eyes. How like him, to haggle with a humble merchant in an Egyptian bazaar! By nature Dick was small and mean and tyrannical.

"Oh, my lord is mistaken!" returned Gish Dewar, with deadly courtesy in his tones; "my lord is mistaken. The amulet was not made in the place he calls New York. It came from the tomb of Prince Ammenara, a nephew of Rameses II. of a time long past when my lord's ancestors were poor peasants working in the fields!"

Dick was stuttering with rage. He felt that Maud was secretly amused at the truthful words of the Catrene merchant.

"You can keep the money," laughed Dick rudely, turning away.

Gish Dewar gathered the 500 piastres into his strong hands and shook them musically.

"I will wager my lord 500 piastres that I will return this money to him at the moment of his greatest humiliation, for he has been a false friend."

Dick laughed harshly and followed his companions. His good looking face wore a scowl. His thoughts were unpleasant enough.

"What did the fellow mean?" he asked himself. "What the deuce did he mean by talking about 'false friends'?"

Mrs. Carleton was apologizing for her son's bad temper.

"I am afraid it is the tropical sun," she said, striving to reassure the girl whom Dick wanted to marry. Maud was her goddaughter and Mrs. Carleton had counted upon this European trip to bring about the desired engagement.

They went along the bazaar, and while Dick and his mother picked out a silky rug, Maud hurried back to Gish Dewar. He was sitting there in that motionless, meditative attitude.

He glanced up sharply at sound of her light step and then drew back into the shadow.

In the sunlight her face shone with its wonderful tints of cream and pink, gray eyes, black lashed and cool, and shimmering golden hair.

She was wasting a wonderful smile upon the poor merchant.

"I will buy the amulet," she said softly, taking money from her purse. "Hurry, please!"

Gish Dewar opened the copper box, took out the onyx amulet and laid it in her hand, but he waved away the proffered money.

"Effendi has paid for it," he said in a muffled tone.

"But I cannot take it unless you let me pay for it. The gentleman is not a relative; he is merely a friend," she said laughingly.

So Gish Dewar humbly took the money and locked it in his copper box.

"Wear it next your heart. It will bring back one who loves you," he said.

Maud slipped the amulet into her purse.

"Will it bring back one I love?" she whispered, blushing.

"From across the world!" he said, and she fled, blushing hotly.

As if the crafty promises of an Egyptian fortune teller could restore Elmer Winn to her!

She had been engaged to him when he set sail for China several years ago, and she had never received a letter from him. She learned that he was there and prospering.

If he had chosen this way to break their engagement, Maud would meet him halfway, so she sent out to him her engagement ring without one word of explanation.

After many months came back to her the registry receipt that had accompanied the ring. Because it bore his strong signature Maud kept it among her treasures.

Ever since then Dick Carleton had ardently wooed her.

Six months afterward Dick Carleton sat in the smoking room of his club. One by one his companions yawned and went home to dress for dinner.

Dick was left alone with his gloomy thoughts.

That afternoon he had proposed to Maud Raymond and had been firmly refused.

"I don't love you, Dick, and I never shall," she had said.

So Dick had excellent reason to be melancholy, and there were other unpleasant memories that would not be banished.

He ordered another glass of whisky and sipped it moodily.

Out of the silence of the room a voice spoke like the crack of a whip.

"Ah, Carleton, I was looking for you!" Dick half rose from his chair and confronted Elmer Winn's handsome bronzed face. Winn's hands were braced on the table, and his broad shoulders leaned across the polished mahogany.

"False friend!" he said cuttingly.

Carleton winced and sank back in his chair. "All's fair in love," he muttered sullenly.

"False friend," repeated Winn. "You wrote to me that you were already married to Maud. I was so enraged that I hated all of you, even my country, and I would not read a newspaper from home. I believed your lie, and when a few weeks later I received my ring from her I knew you had spoken truly."

"I left China. I have money. I have wandered the world over, amusing myself by various methods in many lands. Once in a bazaar in Cairo I saw you and her, and her hands were bare of rings. I knew she was not married to you—that you lied!"

Carleton was cringing in his chair.

"I loved her," he whispered hoarsely.

"So did I," reminded the other man; then, with a sudden change of voice, he added:

"The wager, effendi!"

"What do you mean, Winn? Why do you speak like the curio seller in the bazaar at Cairo?" gasped Dick.

"Because I am he!" thundered the other. "I became Gish Dewar, the curio dealer, because it amused me to form part of that colorful life. I was lonely. But now—his voice softened—"It is different. I sold the onyx amulet to a lady, and I promised her that if she would wear it next her heart it would bring back one she loves and one who loves her." He turned away.

"Where are you going now?" demanded Dick.

"I am going to make her wish come true," said the man who had been Gish Dewar, and behind him on the table he left a copper box containing 500 piastres.

QUAINT AND CHARMING.

Daphne Silk, Which is Pink and Also Flowered, Makes Chic Frocks.

AFTERNOON ORATION.

Frock of pink and white flowered daphne silk, the bodice simply cut and the skirt a series of slightly gathered flounces. The surplice vest and frilled sleeves are of white net. Worn with this frock is a bonnet of Leghorn, the top piled high with stiffly arranged flowers.

MANY USES FOR POTATO.

To clean a vinegar cruet fill the cruet with finely chopped potato skin, cork tightly and let stand in a warm place three days, then turn the skins out and rinse the cruet with warm water and borax.

To clean rusty knives use a raw potato dipped in brick dust.

To kindle fires potato parings dried in the oven are good, as they light easily.

To clean carpets grate a raw potato and rub over the surface of the carpet and finish off with a clean cloth wrung out in warm water.

To clean dresses grate two raw potatoes into a pint of cold water, strain for each a sieve, add another pint of water and let it settle. Dip a sponge in the water and rub the soiled garment carefully, afterward rinsing with cold water.

To clarify drippings slice a raw potato into the fat while rendering. It will absorb all impurities.

To clean silk from mud spots, after washing thoroughly rub soiled places with a raw potato.

When a fern turns yellow slice a raw potato and put it on top of the soil. This will draw out the worms.

PAINTED FURNITURE.

Black Picked Out in White Makes Charming Bedroom Furniture.

The fad for black and white has penetrated to the bedroom and many pieces of old, castoff furniture are being rejuvenated by the handy little paint pot.

BLACK AND WHITE DRESSER.

The dresser shown in the illustration is one which had been discarded, but is now a pretty and useful piece of furniture.

The New Taffetas.

Some of the new taffetas are really lovely, supple, wonderfully light and lustrous, and exquisite of line. The radium, glazed and changeable, and the taffetas in chameleon effects are all pressed into service.

Did You Know That—

As a rhyme in St. Nicholas points out, the owl is most ungrammatical in saying "To who? to whom?" instead of "to whom? to whom?" But then you can't expect much from an owl, and even less from a boiled owl!

SOCIETY NOTES.

The summer social of the Daughters of Isabella will be held this evening when they will give a complimentary dance to their friends at Kingston Point. The card of the member issuing the invitation must be presented at the door. Malsenholder's orchestra will furnish music from 8 to 12 and light refreshments will be served.

The ladies auxiliary of B. of L. F. and E. enjoyed a delightful trip to Lake Mohonk on Wednesday and had as their guests of honor Mrs. Imogene Bates of Oneonta and Mrs. Elizabeth T. May of Albany. The party left the post office at 6:30, going by the way of Hurley and returning by way of New Paltz. The day will be remembered as one of pleasure by all.

The Young Centrals held their second annual banquet Tuesday night at the home of Andrew Leuffgen, No. 160 Highland avenue. A buffet luncheon was served during the evening by Mrs. Leuffgen and it was enjoyed by all. After the luncheon Miss Mamie Leuffgen rendered a few selections on the piano accompanied by the Young Centrals quartet, which sang the latest songs that brought applause from the guests. Those present at the banquet were B. Wilson, A. Gill, J. Schwenk, L. Gregory, J. Rourke, B. Rourke, G. Caddy, J. Kiernan, R. Boss, F. Noonman, J. Hughes, J. Loduskie, A. Leuffgen and a number of guests from out of town. At an early hour the guests departed voting the Leuffgens as charming entertainers.

Kivlan-Renn.

Miss Elizabeth Anna Renn of No. 47 Newkirk avenue and Richard Joseph Kivlan of New York city were married at St. Mary's Church on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by the Rev. John J. Hickey.

Sanford-Osterhout.

Willard J. Sanford of Tremper avenue and Miss Elizabeth Mae Osterhout of Newburgh were married in that city on Tuesday evening at the parsonage of the First Baptist Church, the Rev. George K. Beck with officiating. The witnesses were Mrs. G. S. Beckwith and Miss Charlotte M. Hewitt. Mr. and Mrs. Sanford will reside in Kingston.

Kennedy-Lacey.

Miss Edna May Lacey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lacey, of No. 20 Furnace street, and Samuel Austin Kennedy of Jersey City, were quietly married on Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. George M. Cranston, of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. Miss Almee L. Lacey, a sister of the bride, and Miss Lucy M. Hazzard were the attendants.

Brunner-Buseck.

Miss Freida Louise Buseck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Buseck of Highland, and Christopher Brunner of Richmond Hill, Long Island, were married on Wednesday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Denton C. Anderson, No. 18 South Hamilton street, Poughkeepsie, by the Rev. J. Fred Bernon, pastor of St. John's English Lutheran Church. After a wedding tour to the Panama exposition at San Francisco and other points of interest in the West Mr. and Mrs. Brunner will reside at Richmond Hill.

Wagar-Geary.

Miss Bertha F. Wagar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Wagar of Ellenville, and John S. Geary of Kerhonkson were quietly married at the parsonage by the Rev. Mr. Pryne of Kerhonkson on Saturday evening, June 26. Miss Wagar was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel E. Wagar. Edna Geary and her brother, Harold J. Wagar, as best man. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for a trip by automobile and on their return they will make their home in Kerhonkson. The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents. The many friends wish them much joy and happiness in their future home.

Bechtold-Robb.

A pretty wedding took place in the Church of the Holy Name, Wilbur, on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Nellie M. Robb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Robb, gave the bride of John J. Bechtold of this city. The bride wore a becoming gown of white crepe de chine, trimmed with lace with shadow lace bridal cap and carried bridal roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Beatrice, who wore pink crepe de chine and carried sweet peas. Mark Bechtold, a brother of the groom acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Prendergast, pastor of the church. After a reception at the home of the bride the happy couple left on the 10:15 train for Buffalo, where they will spend a short honeymoon. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Bechtold will reside at 64 Pine Grove avenue, where a newly furnished home awaits them. Guests were present from Poughkeepsie and New York. The presents were numerous and costly, consisting of silver, cut glass and linen. Both bride and groom have a host of friends who wish them a long and happy wedded life.

Thompson-Bonnyman.

The marriage of Miss Evelyn Janet Bonnyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bonnyman of Port Jervis, and Rollin W. Thompson, principal of the Ellenville High School, was solemnized at the bride's home, 8 Ferguson avenue, Port Jervis, at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Rev. A. L. Thompson of Philadelphia, N. Y. The beautiful service of the Baptist Church with the ring was used. The bride was gown in an exquisite creation of white silk en train with veil and lace cap caught with orange blossoms and carried a large shower bouquet of bride's roses and was attended by Miss Virginia Denman of Ellenville as maid of honor, who was beautiful in a gown of pink silk and lace, who carried pink roses. The little flower girls, Alice Brown and Marion Wells, who wore white frocks with pink sashes and carried baskets of pink roses. The groom and his best man, Mr.

JOHN ARMSTRONG CHALONER

CHALONER AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT.

(John Armstrong Chaloner.)

New York, July 1.—John Armstrong Chaloner, phrase maker extraordinary and author of "Who's Looney Now?" has written a play with which he intends to fight the lunacy laws of various states. It is called "Robbery Under Law, or The Battle of Millionaires," and was ground out at Merry Mills, Chaloner's estate in Virginia. There the author is a sane man under the state law, while New York courts have adjudged him insane.

To give full measure in the volume Mr. Chaloner has combined with "Robbery Under Law" another play, called "The Hazard of the Die," numerous newspaper clippings concerning his own vicissitudes and some sonnets. The frontispiece is a portrait of Chaloner in the dress of Napoleon—the same picture that he sent to newspapers in 1912, when his modesty first yielded to his resemblance to the great little Corsican.

The play "Robbery Under Law" is founded upon Chaloner's own adventures before and after his escape from Bloomingdale. In the prologue, in which the author refers to himself as "Who's Looney Now?" Chaloner declares his intention of producing the play in all parts of the country and accompanying its production with lectures on the insanity laws.

Just how Chaloner is going to manage about New York he doesn't say. He surely can't be planning to omit New York from his tour for here, if anywhere, he has found iniquitous lunacy laws, to say nothing of "criminal anarchy." Perhaps he is reckoning on the co-operation of the Supreme Court of the United States, where his appeal from an adverse judgment in his suit to recover the control of his $1,500,000 property is pending.

It is not the first appearance Chaloner has made as an author, although it is the first time he has come out as a Napoleonic crusader in literature. In 1911 he wrote forty-seven sonnets, explaining his ideas on hell and Bernard Shaw. A few months ago the war set his pen to itching, and he gave the Germans what he gave Shaw—only more so.

Told Her About It.

Eugene attended the wedding of his Aunt Nan, which took place in church. The bridegroom and best man were waiting at the altar for the bride, who was slowly advancing up the aisle, to the strains of the wedding march, when Eugene's childish treble sounded clearly: "Hurry up, Aunt Nan, Mr. Abbot's waiting for you."

Notary Public.

The qualifications for a notary public are just ordinary intelligence and honesty. So far as age is concerned, any age after twenty-one will fill the bill.

A Hint to Golfers.

If there is one part of the game more than another that is likely to try the golfer's patience to the utmost it is putting. When we consider that half of the game of golf is on the putting green is not this a good reason why we should be proficient at it? But how are we to overcome this weakness on the green?

The only real sound theory that is known for putting is to swing your putter on a dead straight line through the ball toward the hole. You can practice this method by putting the end of the putter head close up to a wall and practice swinging your putter back and forth. A pendulum movement is best, keeping the end of the putter close to the wall. Try it and see if it does not help your holing out—Onting.

Good For Something.

He called the waitress over to his table and in a whisper said: "Err, these eggs—"

"Yes, sir."

"Excuse me, miss, but it seems almost a crime."

"What do you mean, sir?"

"Why should I, a big, strong man, make such an accusation. They may be good. I trust they are, but not for eating purposes. Do you get me?"

She did, and she also got an order of real eggs—Boston Record.

Dogs of War.

The "dogs of war" have been more than a figure of speech for thousands of years. They were used in Egypt 400 B. C. The Romans, the Teutons and other fighting nations of antiquity depended much on them for sentinel and defense purposes. In the middle ages they are said to have even worn armor. The Spanish discoverers used bloodhounds in tracking the Indians in this country.

Rare Modesty.

"Bilkins has been a passenger on some of the largest ships afloat."

"Is that his sole claim to distinction?"

"No, indeed. What makes Bilkins unique is the fact that he didn't apparently become an intimate friend of all the prominent people on board those ships."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

SUMMER COLONY AT NEWPORT DELIGHTED WITH NEW HOSTELRY.

Newport, R. I., July 1.—Today the new Hill Top Inn, a magnificent hostelry built under the direction of the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt, one of the leading social lights of the summer colony here, was opened to the public. The Hill Top Inn is expected to be the rendezvous for society folks during the season, and the scene of many notable social events for which Newport is famous. The new hotel is beautifully and comfortably decorated and has many features to commend it. Chief among these is the pretty dining room, shown in the accompanying illustration. The insert shows Master Charles Dixon, one of the little society personages familiar in the summer social capital frequented by the elite of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington.

ADVERTISING WRITING.

ATTENTFUL waiting does not bring home the business. It requires persistent "scouting" with ammunition such as my wording of advertisements, booklets, circulars, etc., to "bring home the bacon." My terms are reasonable. If am not "tied to" any one store or branch of business, I write advertising and show results for all who seek my services and are willing to do their share toward business betterment. George M. HIZEN FOUND DEAD IN CHICKEN COOP

John J. Hizen was found dead in his chicken coop in the rear of his home, No. 33 Newkirk avenue, this morning, by neighbors. Death was due to heart failure. Mr. Hizen has been employed as bartender at the New York Wine and Liquor House, No. 52 East Strand, for the past eleven years. This morning he opened the cafe as usual and worked until 7 o'clock, when he was relieved by Abram Handler, the proprietor, and Mr. Hizen left for his breakfast. Several hours passed and as he did not return to work Mr. Handler became anxious and telephoned to Flick's candy store, corner of Broadway and Newkirk avenue, and asked if they would go to Hizen's house and find out why he had not gone back to work. They went down and found Mr. Hizen dead on the floor of the chicken coop. He had evidently after having his breakfast gone out to feed his chickens when stricken. Coroner E. A. Kelly was summoned and issued a death certificate. Mr. Hizen resided with his sister, Miss Katherine Hizen, who works in the American cigar factory, and who had gone to work early this morning. As the body was not found until about 11 o'clock it is likely that Mr. Hizen had been dead for several hours before his body was discovered. Besides his sister, with whom he resided, he is survived by another sister and a brother, George Hizen, who resides at Springfield, Mass. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

If This is Your Birthday?

JULY 1

The Zodiac reveals that the sign governing all birthdays from June 21 to July 22 is Cancer.

It is also shown that the Moon is the governing planet. When these influences are all centered in one character, it is often a difficult one to understand.

There is a determination that amounts to cold, persistent stubbornness in a person born under these signs.

The strongest desire is for change.

The weakest point in the nature is emotion and sympathy.

The truest happiness for this person will be found with one whose birthday falls between January 21 and February 19.

The Freeman Want Ads will locate lost articles and will lead to good business investments; real estate should be particularly well advertised during the coming few days.

NEW CLERK OF SURROGATE'S COURT

Surrogate Gill has appointed his son, Walter H. Gill, clerk of the surrogate's court, to succeed Daniel B. Deyo, who has been clerk of the court for the past six and a half years and who resumes the practice of law. During the time he has been clerk Mr. Deyo has retained his offices in the Preston building at No. 240 Fair street, which he will continue to occupy. Mr. Deyo studied law under Judge Parker while the latter was surrogate and since his admission to the bar has been connected with many prominent estates. His long experience has made him an authority on surrogate's court practice and he will devote himself largely to surrogate's court work in the future. Mr. Gill is a graduate of Kingston Academy and in June was graduated from Cornell University.

THE BATTERING OF BEDFORD.

It All Came About Over a Bill for a Livery Rig.

This morning Henry Lebois, the Railroad avenue liveryman, when arraigned before Recorder Andrew Lang on a charge of assault in the third degree preferred against him by Deputy Sheriff Abram Bedford, asked for a jury trial and the case was adjourned until Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The alleged assault occurred on the Strand a few days ago and Bedford was badly up. The story of how it all happened is an interesting one. Bedford, who is a deputy sheriff, was one of the many men on the trail of Mary Jordan, the missing Ashokan girl, who was later found at Poughkeepsie. He had secured a clue that the girl had been in Kingston and he engaged a rig from Lebois's livery stable and drove out to Rifton. He told Lebois at the time that he expected to use the rig both afternoon and evening, but that night he went with a friend in an automobile to East Kingston where he also searched for the girl. The bill for livery hire amounted to $2 and he told Lebois he would pay it later. When the time came for paying Lebois he said that he would have to get a check cashed and would pay the liveryman on the following Monday. Some argument followed and Bedford claims that he cut short the argument decided not to wait until then but pay it that day. While walking along the Strand the liveryman jumped out of his wagon and coming up to Bedford knocked him down. Lebois claimed the reason he hit Bedford was because the latter had called him a filthy name. The trial promises to be an interesting one. Lebois has retained Chris Panagan of Brinler & Canfield as his counsel and Bedford is represented by Judge N. Frank O'Reilly.

City Bond Sale Adjourned.

The $24,000 worth of city bonds that were to have been sold at public auction this morning by City Treasurer Fred H. Doremus were not sold and the sale was adjourned until Friday, July 9, at 11 o'clock at the city hall. Several sealed bids had been received by the city treasurer from bidders who found it impossible to attend the sale but as no provision for opening sealed bids had been made in the published notice of the sale the city treasurer after a conference with Mayor Canfield and Corporation Counsel Brinler adjourned the sale. Only one bidder appeared in person this morning and that was a man representing a New York city concern. The bonds to be sold are to cover the city's cost of the Washington avenue viaduct.

Chance For a Capitalist.

William Jackson, a budding genius of Georgia, was arrested on Wednesday night by Detective Goodsell of the West Shore railroad on a charge of train riding. Jackson, when arraigned before Recorder Lang this morning, said that he had a patent collar button and he was hurrying to New York city to interest capital in it, and being short of change had hopped a train. The recorder decided that he did not care to stand in the way of a young genius making a fortune and he discharged Jackson, who agreed to get out of town and is probably in New York by now trying to interest some capitalist in his collar button.

Jail Statistics For June.

During the month of June there were 1,006 days spent at the Ulster county jail. There were 21 inmates at the beginning of the month and 27 at the end. The biggest number in the jail on any one day was fifty and the smallest after the first day was twenty-five.

POULTRY FACTS.

COST OF RENEWING A FLOCK

Bulletin 135 of the Utah experiment station gives the results of a study in annual egg production. This is based on the records of a flock of seven-year-old hens and their progeny, and figures given are very interesting. For example, a White Leghorn hen in her pullet year laid 103 eggs. Under the usual system of judging layers, this hen would have been discarded as a drone, but the next year she came back with 197 and repeated with 108. In her fourth year she fell down to 72, yet in her sixth year she laid as many as she had when a pullet. It is a question whether it paid to keep this hen after her third year, but such records are necessary in order to learn definitely about such things.

The cost of renewing the flock is considered one of the greatest drawbacks to the poultry industry, the authors estimating the cost of a pullet—probably up to laying age—at from 50 to 60 cents. The average productive life of hens cannot be estimated at this stage of their work, but for the strain used in their studies was thought to be about four years. The range of individual egg production in their flocks was found to be from 100 to 160 in the first year, from 105 to 140 in the second year and from 100 to 130 in the third year. After the third year the production remained fairly constant at about 90, with a variation of not more than 10 or 15 eggs per year.

SERVICEABLE POULTRY HOUSE

Portable Colony Structure Shown in Illustration Will Accommodate Ten to Fifteen Fowls.

Here is a poultry house that will accommodate from 10 to 15 fowls, according to the amount of yard room, breed, etc. It is known as a colony house and is portable, so that it can be moved from one part of the field to another, says a writer in Western Farmer. The building is 9 feet long and 7 feet wide and about 6 feet high at the center and 18 inches at the eaves. The door is covered with fine wire netting, so as to provide light and ventilation. If desired the door

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, July 1.—The Federal League, as a whole, has a fine chance at this writing to clear expenses this season. Several clubs in the league will show a profit at the end of the year if the attendance to date is maintained to the end of the season.

The biggest surprise in the financial way has been the support given this season to the St. Louis and Kansas City clubs. The Federal moguls, during the winter, decided to drop Kansas City from the circuit. They did drop it but had to pick it up again upon orders from the courts granting the plea of the Kansas City stockholders.

From the opening of the 1915 season to June 20th the Kansas City Federals drew a larger total crowd than they did all last season. Facts and figures to back up this statement were shown to the writer recently. The Kansas Feds drew a 14,000 Sunday crowd recently and during one series drew about 18,000 paid fans.

Kansas City has been up in the fight in last year it was in the rut. That the fans love a winner and will not support a loser is proven in the case of Kansas City which had been termed "the worst baseball team in the country."

The St. Louis Feds furnish the next largest surprise. So far in the 1915 season—a period of less than 12 weeks—the St. Louis Feds have played to a larger crowd of home fans than they did during the entire 1913 and 1914 seasons.

St. Louis began moving in an upward direction about six or eight weeks ago and the St. Louis fans taking due cognizance of the fact, have been supporting them nobly. The St. Louis fans play to thousands at home now where they played to hundreds before.

Out in St. Louis there's a sort of "Boost the Cardinals" plan in operation. And Bob Hedges, owner of the Browns, is trying to lure fans to his park through the medium of advertising schemes. Despite this, the Feds are said to have outdrawn the Cards and the Browns in home patronage during the past six weeks.

The Pittsburgh Feds claim they are outdrawing the Pirates in Pittsburgh. They say they are perfectly willing to produce sworn attendance statements, if Barney Dreyfus will do likewise and that the comparison will show the Feds patronage in Pittsburgh greater than that of the National Leaguers.

Buffalo and Baltimore aren't doing as well this year as they did last, but that is to be expected, with both teams in the cellar. Brooklyn is doing at least 75 per cent better than last year, and the attendance has increased gradually since the season opened.

Newark supported its new club royally during the early part of the season. Then the team slumped and the attendance, naturally, did likewise. But Newark's early attendance receipts were sizeable enough to place the balance on the right side of the ledger and only the almost utter lack of patronage during the balance of the season can swing the balance to the losing side. Practically every club in the Federal League is operating at less cost than in 1914. Some clubs have chopped off as much as $25,000 from their expense bills. Very few of the clubs are carrying any more than 25 or 30 men. The average was from 25 to 27 last year. Many players who signed up one year contracts at fancy figures are not in the Federal League this year.

The schedule of the Feds this year, is more compact than was last year's. That means a saving in traveling and hotel bills. The Fed magnates, new at the game last year, wasted a lot of money. Last year's experience showed them their errors—and they are not duplicating them this year.

With increased attendance prevailing quite generally throughout the circuit, and with operating expenses cut to a minimum, it certainly looks as if the 1915 season will be a far better one financially for the Feds than was 1914.

HURLEY.

Hurley, July 1.—An old fashioned home made ice cream and strawberry festival was held in the church on Tuesday night. The affair rallied together the people for one of those social evenings that are so much appreciated. The members of the consistory were most efficient in seeing that every one was duly and comfortably served, while the financial result was not the least pleasing feature of the evening.

Mrs. Taggart and Miss Grace Taggart of Wellesley College are visiting Miss Mabel Taggart at the Fort-richer home.

Richard Hillier is home for the summer from Rutgers College.

Harvey Vanderlyn is also a visitor in his old home village. Harvey is stationed now on the U. S. S. New Jersey.

Mrs. Stauble and Dr. and Mrs. Nash attended the wedding on Wednesday morning of Miss Ethel Buchanan at St. Peter's Church in Rondout. The service was the beautiful nuptial mass of the church. Miss Buchanan will be remembered as having taught most successfully for several years in our village school.

Miss Mericle is a summer visitor at Mrs. Markle's.

Mrs. Henckel and Master Henckel are again with us for the summer at Mrs. Maxon's. Mr. Smedes is also at Mrs. Maxon's.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wyness have returned to San Francisco, having come from there at the illness and death of her father.

The three daughters of Eugene Arnst have returned from their protracted stay in the south. After some varied and rather alarming adventures in getting lost on the way north, they reached home on Monday night.

Miss Lillian Metz made a flying trip to Baltimore to visit her mother the past week. Miss Metz enters the Moran School in Kingston for the summer term.

Charles DuMont attended the DuMont family reunion at Walton on Tuesday. There were over 100 DuMonts present.

Accident at Highland.

Jumping from the steps of a south bound passenger train as it was pulling in the West Shore station at Highland on Tuesday evening, Michael Basil, 19 years old, a laborer employed by Barney Morgan at West Park, and who boards in Poughkeepsie, lost his footing and fell beneath the coach. He was removed to Vassar Hospital at Poughkeepsie where it was found necessary to amputate the left leg.

DISTRICT OF FRIULI.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., July 1.—The National Geographic Society explains to Americans who follow developments in the European war what is meant by the district of Friuli, which district the Italians claim to have completely overrun.

"Friuli is the lowland and hill region at the head of the Adriatic Sea, in ancient times one of the 36 duchies into which the Langobardi divided Northern Italy, and, since 1866, divided between Italy and Austria. The Friuli district includes the Italian province of Udine and the district of Portogruaro, and the Austrian province of Goerz and Gradisca, together with the so-called Idrian district.

"The lower slopes of the Julian Alps in the north, and of the Carnic Alps in the east are included in Friuli. The southern part of this region is a rich alluvial plain, sloping gently into the Adriatic, and watered by the Isonzo and several lesser streams.

"The whole district, Italian and Austrian, includes about 3,300 square miles of area. It supports about 700,000 people, largely an agricultural population, and for the most part Italian-speaking. The inhabitants of the ancient duchy are called Furlans. Their speech differs from that of the peninsula, Italians in that it is very strongly modified by Celtic words. Fancy fruits, wines, grapes and grains give lavish harvests in Friuli's mild climate. The table fruits grown here are known as luxuries throughout Europe.

"The present division of this coastal, that of Venetian and Tyrolean Friuli, was recognized at an early period. Tyrolean Friuli came into the possession of Austria in 1500, and Venetian Friuli became Austrian by the Peace of Campo Formio in 1807. The Venetian division was brought back to the Italian fold in 1866, and now the Italians claim to have placed the ancient Austrian division behind their lines."

LEIBHARDT.

Leibhardt, July 1.—Sunday school and preaching services will be held on Sunday afternoon at the usual hour.

Mrs. Peter DeWitt was pleasantly entertained at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stephen Gorsline, on Thursday last.

Tracy Crawford of Walden is enjoying a visit with his former friends and neighbors.

A number of the Leibhardt people will attend the Fourth of July celebration Saturday afternoon and evening at Krumville.

Mrs. Elmer Lyons and three sons of Middletown are spending a week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Quick; also visiting Mrs. Frank Lyons and family at Krumville.

Miss Jennie DeWitt, who had the misfortune to cut her foot severely by broken glass, is getting along nicely. Miss Jennie says no more bare feet for her this summer.

Mrs. Margaret Lawrence and Mrs. L. E. Lawrence pleasantly entertained Mrs. James Quick and Mrs. Elmer Lyons and children on Wednesday. A very enjoyable day was spent by all ladies.

Miss Pearl Davenport of Krumville was a guest of her friend, Miss Meriam A. Brown, on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Davenport was canvassing for a magazine entitled The Gentle Woman, and met with good success, getting four subscriptions in this place. Mrs. Agnes Brown, Ernest L. Brown, Master Rex Brown and Miss Meriam Brown are spending some time in New York.

Another ice cream social is being talked of. Watch for the date in next paper.

Mrs. Ray Churchill has gone to Cragsmoor for the summer.

Several from this place attended the Children's Day services at Samsonville Sunday afternoon and reported the exercises well rendered, and a large attendance despite the condition of the weather.

Marcus Downs of Centerville is expected to spend the Fourth of July with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Quick.

Mrs. Margaret Carter, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Snyder, has gone to Stamford, Delaware county, for the summer, where she has a position as head waitress in a large hotel at Stamford.

We are glad to hear Mrs. Juda Quick is much improved in health. Mrs. Alexander Brown, Mrs. L. E. Lawrence and Miss Louella Brown attended the quarterly conference at the Kripplebush M. E. Church Sunday, June 27.

Miss Meriam Brown is on an extended visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. O. Soleberg, in New York.

The funeral of Kenneth Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Menzo Gray of Rifton, who died at his home on Friday, June 25, was held at the home of Mrs. Tina Gray at Tabasco on Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Voight. The interment was at the Homestead cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman DeWitt and two children, Master Harry and daughter, Miss Marjory, of Schenectady, will spend a week's vacation commencing July 4, with relatives and friends in this place and Whitfield. A number of nice trips are being planned as Mr. DeWitt has promised to give his friends some fine automobile rides to various places.

Friends are very sorry to hear of the serious illness of the small child of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Donohue of Krumville. All hope for its speedy recovery.

Mrs. Margaret Carter called on Mrs. Juda Quick and daughter, Mrs. Eugene Dunnigan, Tuesday afternoon and also was a guest of Mrs. L. E. Lawrence for supper Tuesday evening.

Frank Markle has just received a letter from his brother, William, who went to Delaware county recently looking for work, and we are all pleased to hear William has a fine place in an essence factory in Delaware county.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Miller over the arrival of a young daughter, born June 26, whose name is Della.
